

Little League Ballpark Painted by Kimberly-Clark

On June 6, the Little League ballpark was given a face lift. Many of the island's Little League players came out to help paint the stadium together with their dads and coaches, but it was an incentive taken by global company Kimberly-Clark and its employees to do something for the St. Maarten community whilst on an incentive trip to the island. The employees of Kimberly-Clark, together with a variety of individuals and employees from St. Maarten companies, took paint and brush in hand and spent the whole day that Sunday getting the ball park looking as good as new.

Caribbean Concierge Services (CCS) is a Destination Management Company on St. Maarten and together with corporate event planner company

JNR Incorporated decided that the ballpark was the community project of choice. CCS General Manager May-Ling Chun explains that CCS brings large companies to the island of St. Maarten and apart from providing all the services available to make their visitors' stays enjoyable, they also help some of these companies find a community project. "Many of the incentive trips from large companies nowadays include a community project which will benefit the destination they go to." Together with JNR Incorporated, CCS did site inspections and they decided they liked the Little League ballpark the best.

May-Ling Chun explains that CCS gets requests from big companies for community projects quite a lot, and so great opportunities are available for the community of St. Maarten. "Many companies like to do community projects when they choose a destination. In October, 300 lawyers are coming down to the island and we need to know what community projects are out there for them to help with. We will start visiting different projects soon. What we would like the St. Maarten community to know is that they can approach us with their preferred project, and we will see if we can help.

Please just call or email me."

A great variety of companies and individuals on St. Maarten helped and donated goods, time and effort to get the ballpark looking spic and span. Many thanks go out to Renee Florijn, Red Cross, Sherwin-Williams, Clean St. Maarten, Colombia Sussex, Starwood, and The Westin St. Maarten.
